This one-day conference is hosted by the India branch of the None in Three global research centre for the prevention of gender-based violence.

At this event, academics and practitioners will share expertise on the causes and consequences of violence against women and girls.

Innovative approaches to violence prevention will be discussed, including None in Three's model of developing and evaluating pro-social computer games.

This conference is open to all, and is of particular relevance to:

- academics,
- students and
- practitioners

with an interest in gender issues and violence prevention.

Research Centre

None in Three is a global research centre which develops and evaluates prosocial computer games to prevent gender-based violence. It is based at the University of Huddersfield and funded by the UK Government's Global Challenges Research Fund (through UK Research and Innovation), with satellite offices in Jamaica, Uganda and in India at ISDI School of Design and Innovation, Mumbai.

The Centre takes its name from the fact that, according to the World Health Organisation, one in three women and girls are subject to physical or sexual violence in their lifetime. We aim to make this none in three.
