A form of gender-based violence, child sexual abuse is a risk factor for development of personality disorders, including psychopathy.

Professor Boduszek and Dr Willmott will present a psychological profile of psychopathy, showing a link between child abuse and psychopathic traits. Their lecture draws on their extensive research among both victims and offenders in maximum security prisons.

This public lecture is open to all.

It will be of particular relevance to those who are curious about human psychology and behaviour, as well as:

- Psychologists and Criminologists
- Social Workers
- Police/Criminal Justice workers
- Academics and students with an interest in these areas

None in Three is a global research centre which develops and evaluates prosocial computer games to prevent gender-based violence. It is based at the University of Huddersfield and funded by the UK Government's Global Challenges Research Fund (through UK Research and Innovation), with satellite offices in Jamaica, Uganda and in India at ISDI School of Design and Innovation, Mumbai. The Centre takes its name from the fact that, according to the World Health Organisation, one in three women and girls are subject to physical or sexual violence in their lifetime. We aim to make this none in three.
